Martinis Returns Style and Sophistication to Peachtree City Nightlife

Popular Peachtree City bar and restaurant Martinis is back under its original ownership, but with exciting new offerings.

Chief among the changes is the addition of Chef Jeff Lee. Chef Jeff, who has cooked around the world, worked for prestigious restaurants such as Valentino's and McCormick & Schmick's, and also toured as the professional chef for the Grateful Dead, specializes in a unique fusion of Southern, Asian and Pacific Northwestern flavors.

He brings to Peachtree City the exciting culinary tradition known as Chef's table: a limited-seating, 5-course event with wine pairings that will change each week. The first such event, scheduled for Martini's formal grand re-opening in July, will feature a Bartlett pear and gorgonzola appetizer, house-made clam chowder, a spinach salad with house-made blueberry vinaigrette and Cornish game hen on a bed of walnut dressing with spiced carrots and English sweet peas. Diners will finish with double-chocolate, triple-layer cake with raspberry drizzle.

Besides the weekly Chef's table (by-reservation seatings at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. each Saturday), Martinis offers a Tuesday business networking event with free appetizers and drink specials, a Wednesday Scotch & Cigar club and a Friday night Jazz Jam. Future special events are in the works.

"We're excited to be back in Peachtree City," says original owner James Adduci. "We're offering some really unique opportunities for people looking for a stylish, sophisticated evening spot. And Chef Jeff is doing some amazing things in our kitchen."

Martinis kicks off their return with a grand opening weekend on July 9th and 10th. Friday night's celebration highlights the bar with food and drink specials and free champagne. Saturday night will be the first Chef's table in the private Oak Room. This exclusive first meal is just $45 per person (regularly $60) for all five courses plus wine and coffee and is available only to twelve diners per seating. For reservations, call 404-597-4686.

Martinis is open Tuesday through Saturday and is located in Westpark Walk at the corner of 54 and 74 in Peachtree City. Visit them on the web at www.martinisptc.com.
